The Great Reputation

which Vegetine has attained in all parts of the country is due to

and the large number of testimonials which are constantly being received from persons who have been cured by its use, are conclusive proof of its great value. It is recommended by physicians and apothecaries. As a Blood Purifier and Health Restorer it has no equal.

Vegetine is not prepared for a fancy drink made from poor liquors, which debilitates the system and tends to destroy health instead of restoring it.

Are not the many testimonials given for the different complaints satisfactory to any reasonable person? Are persons suffering from disease that they consider incurable given up to die? Read the different testimonials given and no one can doubt. In many of these cases the persons say that their pain and suffering cannot be expressed, as in cases of Scrofula, where almost every part of the body was one mass of sores; Vegetine has proved a perfect cure. In cases of Salt Rheum, where all else failed to relieve pain, cleanse, purify and heal the skin, restoring the patient to perfect health, Vegetine has proved a cure. In cases of Dyspepsia, many years standing, where the patient could relish no food, Vegetine has proved a cure. Are you troubled with Costiveness, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Dizziness, Sick Headache, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Fever, Inflammation of the Bowels, Piles, Dropsy, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Kidney Complaint, Nervous Prostration, Nervous Headache, Female Complaints, Pain in the Back, Side or Limbs, Sleeplessness, Nervous Fears, Sudden Starts, Dry Skin, Eruptions, Pimples, Tetter, Ringworm, Scurvy, Erysipelas, Canker, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, Consumption, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Piles, Female Complaints, Nervous Prostration, Nervous Headache, Neuralgia, Kidney Complaint

THURSDAY NOV 29 1877

STATE OF MAINE

BY THE GOVERNOR.

A PROCLAMATION.

By the advice of the Executive Council I do hereby appoint THURSDAY, THE TWENTY-SIXTH DAY OF NOVEMBER INSTANT, as a day of Public Thanksgiving. I raise to our Father in Heaven for his great goodness to the people of this State during the year that is now closing. While enjoying the blessings of peace and plenty, let our thoughts and our prayers be directed to the United Source from which all blessings flow. Let the business of the day be suspended as far as may be consistent with the necessary care of the household and the performance of the duties of charity and mercy. Let the poor be remembered with the means of a good dinner. Let the children be gathered around the family board, and let the heart of every one be filled with gratitude and love to the Author of our mercies. Let the day be spent in the house of God, in the exercises of devotion and in the offering of thanks and praise for the blessings we enjoy. No other calamity has visited us than that which we have long expected and for which we have been preparing our minds and hearts. Let our prayers be for the bereaved and afflicted, and for the widows and orphans left by the war. Let our thanks be for the return of peace, for the restoration of fraternal relations between the States, for the preservation of our own State from the horrors of war, for the abundant harvests with which our farms have been blessed, for our immunity from the pestilence which has visited our neighbors, and for the general health and prosperity which have been our portion. Let our prayers be that the Ruler of the Universe may continue to us the blessings we have so long enjoyed, and that we may be prepared to receive the chastisements which we have so long escaped, if it be His will to send them upon us as a people for our sins. Let our thanks be for the continued life of our venerable Chief Magistrate, and for the health and prosperity of our Governor and his family. Let our prayers be that the life of our Chief Magistrate may be prolonged for many years, and that he may be spared from the sorrow of seeing his family driven from their home by the ravages of war. Let our prayers be that our Governor and his family may be spared from the sorrow of seeing their home desolated

FORTY FIFTH CONGRESS—Special Session

Senate

WASHINGTON Nov 28 Immediately after reading the journal Mr Hoar of New Hampshire Chairman of the Committee on Elections moved that the consideration of the resolution reported by that committee for the seat of Mr Kellogg as Senator from Louisiana be postponed

Mr Thurman objected and moved that the resolution be referred to a committee or other tribunal that no body shall be proceeded with pending a hearing of the minority by the committee

Mr Cessden in regard to the resolution by which Edmunds Thurman Wallace and others participated in the election of President decided that the question of priority should be considered in the morning notwithstanding objection

Mr Hill appealed from the decision of the vice President was sustained

Mr Patterson voting with the Democrats in the negative and Conover Republican Senator Davis of Illinois being absent when his name was called

The decision of the chair on the resolution of Davis Committee on Elections Louisiana entitled to a seat was read the vice President will refer and the resolution of Davis 29 and the vice President will refer and the resolution of Conover voted with Democrats Patterson and Davis

Mr Hill moved to amend the resolution by striking out all after the word resolved and inserting that Mr Kellogg was not a Senator from Louisiana

Mr Hill said he had given warning that he would filibuster if the decision was adverse to the Democratic contestant and that he would continue until 1 P M and discussion of Louisiana Saturday morning Laughter on the Democratic side

He held to take up the Louisiana question by a majority of the Republican Senators Hill Hoar Sargent Mitchell to the status of the Senate Laughter on the Democratic side

A MIDNIGHT DRAMA.

(Concluded.)

Perhaps five minutes later they returned—that is, as far as the dining room—and Bob gathered from their conversation that they had found one of the fastenings in the basement in a condition indicating that the burglar might have escaped thereat.

Mrs. McLane and Angie, having satisfied themselves that the coast was clear, descended to the dining room, and a lively discussion of all aspects of the problem ensued, which was highly edifying to Bob.

Then the conversation became still more interesting, as it turned on himself. He heard Mrs. McLane saying:

"He must be a hard sleeper, for I knocked several times on his door."

Then one of the brothers grunted something contemptuously, and then he heard Angie's voice excusing him on the ground that he must be tired after his long journey.

"Are you sure you looked everywhere in the library?" was Mrs. McLane's next question, at which a cold sweat started out on Bob's face. He had just begun to feel quite comfortable.

John and George, however, declared that they had looked everywhere.

"Did you look under the sofa?"

"Behind the window curtains?"

"In the dark corner by the book case?" asked the ladies in succession.

Ingenious cruelty of Fate! Even Angie was racking her brain to guess his hiding-place. What if it should be she who lit upon it?

Bob drew a breath of relief as John replied, with some asperity, to all these questions, that he had told them only that they looked everywhere.

This silenced them, but Angie said, a moment after.

"Just let me ask one more question: Did you look on the top of the bookcase?"

It seemed to Bob that he died then, and came to life again to hear John reply, contemptuously,

"Over the bookcase? There's no room there, and if there were nobody but a monkey could get up."

"There's room enough," persisted Angie, "and I have often noticed, when sitting in the library, what a nice hiding place it would be. What if he should be up there now, and hear what I'm saying?" she added, in an agitated whisper.

"Nonsense!" said John.

"Well, there is no harm in looking, anyway," said Mrs. McLane.

"Come along then," grumbled John. "You shall see for yourselves."

At this Bob shut his eyes, and turned his face to the wall. The ostrich instinct is the human instinct of despair. He tried to fly away from himself, and leave his body there as a derelict. The effort was desperate, and seemed almost successful but he could not quite sever the connection, though his soul appeared to be hovering over his body, only attached by a single thread—but in thread which, alas! would not break.

A moment after, they all passed through the door directly beneath him, and, going clear to the other end of the library, stood on tiptoe, and peered at his hiding-place. There seemed to be eyes in his back, which felt their scrutiny. But the lamp they carried did not suffice to bring out his figure clearly.

"I'm sure I see something," said Angie, getting up on a chair.

"It's only the shadow of the firelight," replied John.

Light the gas and let us make sure," said Mrs. McLane.

George stood up in a chair under the chandelier, and lighted one of the burners.

An inarticulate ejaculation fell from every mouth. A human figure was distinctly visible, reclining along the top of the book case, with his face toward the wall. The ladies would have forthwith run away but for the fact that one door of the room was directly beneath the book case, and the other close to it. Upon Bob's paralyzed senses fell the sharp words of John.

"We've got you. Get down!"

He did not move, but at the summons his soul, with inexpressible reluctance and disgust, began to return from the end of its floating thread, and reinhabit the quarters for which it could not quite shake off responsibility.

"Get up, or I'll shoot!" said George.

"Oh, don't shoot him!" cried Mrs. McLane, while Bob, still motionless, dimly hoped he would.

"Get up!" reiterated John; and Bob did get up. His own will was inactive, and John's was the force that moved his muscles. Bob turned around and sat up, his legs dangling over the edge of the bookcase and his wet, white, frightened face blankly directed toward the group—a most pitiable figure.

"Jump down," said John; and, if you try to escape, you will get shot."

Bob let himself drop without regard to how he was to alight, and in consequence was severely bruised against a chair and the edges of the bookcase.

He stood facing the group. His eyes mechanically sought Angie's. What was his surprise not to see in her expression of mingled curiosity and fright the slightest sign of recognition! At glance showed it it was the same with the others. John and George evidently supposed they were dealing with an ordinary burglar, and the others were apparently quite as devoid of suspicion as to his identity. His wig! He had forgotten his disguise! That explained their long blank demeanor.

The bald man in stockings, trousers and shirt, caught hiding in the library after an attempt on the silver, quite naturally failed to recall to their minds the youth of rather foppish attire and luxurant locks, who bade them good night a few hours previous. As this fact and its explanation broke upon Bob's mind he felt an immense sense of relief, instantly followed by a more poignant perception of the inextricable falsity and cruel absurdity of his position. He had little time to think it over and determine his best course.

John stepped forward, and with the point of his cane—word motioned him into a corner, thus leaving the way clear to the ladies who at once hurried into the dining room, throwing glances of fear and aversion upon Bob as they passed. Angie paused at the doorway and asked

"What are you going to do with the dreadful man?"

Bob even now was able to notice that he had never seen her so startlingly beautiful as now, with her golden hair falling over her charming disharille, while her eyes semiflashed with excitement. She would have blushed to have been seen by him in such a toilet, but, with an odd feeling of being double, he perceived that she now regarded him as she would have an animal.

"George and I will attend to him. You had better go to bed," replied John to her question; and then he sent George after some cord, meanwhile standing in front of Bob with cocked revolver. Had he scanned his prisoner closely, he might have detected something familiar in his lineaments, but in careless contempt he took him in with a sweeping glance as an average burglar, whose identity was a question for the police.

Bob had not uttered a word. In the complex falsity of his position he could not indeed muster presence of mind to resolve on any course, but regarded with a kind of infinity the extraordinary direction events were taking. But when George returned with the rope, and ordered him to put his hands behind him, he said, in a tone so quiet that it surprised himself:

"Hold on, Mr. McLane; this joke has gone far enough. I am Robert Withers, at your service, and respectfully decline to be considered in the light of a burglar any further."

George's jaw dropped with astonishment, and John was scarcely less than taken aback.

"Well if he isn't!" ejaculated the former, after a moment, in a tone of incredulous conviction, as he recognized at once the voice, and now the features of Bob; "But where's your hair?"

Bob blushed painfully.

"I wear a wig," he replied, "and to-night, come down stairs after you were all abed to get my ring which I had left on the table here, I did not fully dress. Going back it was my luck to stumble over that cursed stand in the other room."

"But what did you hide for?" asked John sharply.

Bob touched his bald head and replied,

"I heard the ladies up."

John picked the revolver on the sofa and stood pensive. Finally he said, with a sardonic smile:

"Mr. Withers, how do you propose to get out of this? Shall I call in the ladies and let you explain? They will presently be wanting to know what we have done with the burglar."

Bob made no reply. Already bitterly humiliated, he saw no way of avoiding indefinite and yet bitterer humiliations.

John thought a few minutes longer, and then he said:

"Look all sort, Mr. Withers—I have a proposition to make.

They sat down.

"You are aware," continued John, in the calmest, almost imperturbable tone, "that I don't like your sister Julia, and I'm willing to do my best to break off. But she is so obstinate a girl and I'm pretty much given up hope. These peculiar circumstances have most unexpectedly put you in my power, and I propose to make the most of my advantage. If I were to call in Angie now and introduce you, I feel tolerably well assured that it would be the end of your matrimonial expectations in that quarter. Still, you shall have a chance for your life. I will call her, if you say so," and John rose.

"Don't let her come in here!" groaned Bob, in abject panic.

John grinned, stepped toward the door, and then turned back irresolutely, muttering:

"Wonder if it wouldn't be the shortest way out of it to call her down?" Then with a saving reflection upon the uncertainty of a woman's dance under any given set of circumstances, he came back, and reseating himself opposite Bob, said, with a sardonic smile:

"So you don't like my little suggestion of giving you one more chance with Angie? On the whole, I think you are wise. The other alternative is to leave the house at once, relinquish your engagement, and never see her again. Make your choice, and as quickly as convenient, for I'm getting sleepy," and he yawned lazily.

Bob sat in an attitude of utter dejection, staring at the ashes of the fire.

"You are taking altogether too long to make up your mind, Mr. Withers. It will make shorter work to call Angie," finally said John, sharply, his patience quite at an end. He rose and stepped to the door as he spoke.

"It won't be necessary, John—here I am," said a clear voice, with a sharp ring in it that the family had learned to know meant decisive work; and Angie stepped into the room, her blue eyes flashing with indignation and her lip trembling with scorn, beautiful as a goddess.

Bob started up from his abject attitude and stood facing her with the look of a man waiting his doom from the firing-squad. As he stood there drawn up to his full height, with just a touch of appealing softening the defiance of his expression, it was a manly face and figure in spite of all. But her brother received Angie's first attention.

"You mean cowardly fellow!" she said, in tones of concentrated contempt. "I would not have believed that men were so mean!—And I am almost as much ashamed of you, Mr. Withers," she added, turning to Bob, with a softer but yet angry voice. "Did you think, sir, that I took you for your beauty? I don't care if you wear forty wigs, or none. You are absurdly vain, sir." She was smiling now. "You should know that when a woman loves a man it is for place and not of works; anyhow, John," she added, turning to him as if contrasting his slight figure with Bob's fine physique, "Mr. Withers doesn't wear shoulder pads." With that parting shot she disappeared into the dining room, in a moment reappearing to say: "Mr. Withers, you may forgive them if you want to. I'm by no means sure that I shall. And now go to bed all of you, and don't go keeping us awake."

There was an outward silence for a few moments. Then John said:

"I don't ask your pardon, Mr. Withers, because I meant to succeed, and I'm sorry I didn't. But I know when I'm beaten, and you need expect no further opposition from me. Let's go to bed."—Edward Bellamy in Appleton's Journal.

ST. NICHOLAS.

"The king of all publications issued for the young on either side of the Atlantic."—Southern Literary Messenger.

The third volume of this incomparable Magazine is now completed. With its eight hundred royal octavo pages, and its six hundred illustrations, its splendid serials, its shorter illustrated poems, and sketches, etc., etc., in its beautiful binding of red and gold, it is the most splendid gift-book for boys and girls ever issued from the press. Price $4, in full gilt, $5.

"St. Nicholas is full of the choicest things. The publication is, in all respects, the best of its kind. We have never yet seen a number that was not surprisingly good."—The Churchman, Hartford, Conn.

"ST. NICHOLAS for 1877, which opens with November, 1876, begins a short and very entertaining Serial from the French, "The Kingdom of the Forest," a story adapted to the Thanksgiving season. Another series of absorbing interest to boys, "THE OWN MASTER," by J. T. Trowbridge, author of "the Jack Hazard Stories," begins in the Christmas Holiday number.

Besides serial stories, Christmas stories, lively sketches, poems and pictures for the young, and some astonishing illustrations of Original sketches with Crayons by Sol Eytinge, the Christmas Holiday Number of St. Nicholas, superbly illustrated, contains very interesting papers, viz: "THE BOYS OF MY BOYHOOD," by William Cullen Bryant.

"The Horse Hotel," a lively article, by Charles A. Barnard, splendidly Illustrated, "The Clock in the Sky," by Richard A. Proctor, "A Christmas Play for Home or Sunday Schools," by Dr. Eggleston, "The Reindeer Christmas Tree," by Parrotts, Hale, "Poetry and Carols of Winter," by Lucy Larcom, with pictures.

Do Not Fail to Buy ST. NICHOLAS for the Christmas Holidays. PRICE 25 cents.

During the year there will be interesting papers for boys, by William Cullen Bryant, John G. Whittier, Thomas Hughes, William Howitt, Dr. Holland, George Macdonald, Sanford B. Hunt, Frank R. Stockton, and others.

There will be stories, sketches, and poems, of special interest to girls, by Harriet Prescott Spofford, Susan Coolidge, Sarah Winter Kellogg, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Louisa Alcott, Lucretia P. Hale, Celia Thaxter, Mary Mapes Dodge, and many others. There will be also " with maps, showing "The Stars of Each Month," which will be likely to surpass in interest any series of popular science recently given to the public.

AMUSEMENT AND INSTRUCTION, with FUN AND FROLIC, and WIT AND WISDOM, will be mingled as heretofore, and ST. NICHOLAS will continue to delight the young and give pleasure to the old.

THE LONDON LITERARY WORLD says:

"There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal the choice production of SCRIBNER'S press. All the articles, whether in prose or rhyme, are overflowing with vitality. . . . The literature and artistic illustrations are both superb."

The London Daily News says: "We think we could point out its equal in our own periodical literature."

GOOD NEWS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

To meet the demand for a cheaper ST. NICHOLAS Gift Book, the price of vols. I and II has been reduced to $3 each. The three volumes, in an elegant library case, are sold for $10 (in full gilt, $15) so that all may give their children a complete set. These volumes contain more attractive material for fifty dollars' worth of the ordinary children's books.

Subscription price, $3 a year. The three bound volumes and a subscription for the year, only $12. Subscribe with the nearest newsdealer, or send money in check, or P. O. money order, or in registered letter, to

In the matter of GEORGE A. RICH, Bankrupt,

IN BANKRUPTCY.

This is to give notice that a Petition has been presented to the Court, this 27th day of April, 1877, by George A. Rich, of Bucksport, in Bankrupt, praying that he may be decreed to have a full discharge from all his debts, provable under the Bankrupt Act, and upon reading said petition, and it appearing that the former order of notice on said petition not having been published as required by law, now on this 30th day of October, A. D. 1877,

It is ordered by the Court that a hearing be had upon the same, on the first Monday of January, A. D. 1878, before the Court in Portland, in said District, at 10 o'clock A. M., and that the second meeting of the creditors of said bankrupt be held before Chas. Hamlin, Esq., Register, on the third day of December, 1877, and the third meeting of the same on the 3d day of Dec., 1877, and that notice thereof be published in the Bangor Daily Whig and Courier and the Ellsworth American, newspapers printed in said District, once a week for three successive weeks, and once in the Weekly Bangor Courier, the last publication to be thirty days at least before the day of hearing, and that all creditors who have proved their debts and other persons in interest, may appear at said time and place, and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate in and for the County of Penobscot:

Samuel E. Benjamin, Guardian of Samuel P. Bragg and Annie E. Bragg, of Patten, in said County, represents that his said wards are seized and possessed as heirs of their father, Samuel P. Bragg, of one seventh part in common and undivided of the following tracts or parcels of land, subject to the right of dower therein, of their mother, Lydia M. Bragg, to wit:

Lot number eighty-four (84) lying in Mount Chase in said county. Also one parcel lying in Patten in the county of Penobscot, bounded on the south by land occupied by Seth Alden, on the west by the east line of the said town of Mount Chase; on the north by land formerly owned by James Brown, and on the east by the Aroostook road. And said Guardian further represents that said real estate is now unprofitable and of no benefit to said wards and that it would be for their interest that the same be sold and the proceeds applied to the support of said minors or invested for their benefit.

He therefore prays that he may be duly licensed and empowered to sell the same at public or private sale as he shall judge most for the benefit of his said wards.

S. E. BENJAMIN, Guardian.

STATE OF MAINE.

PENOBSCOT, ss. Court of Probate, October Term, A. D. 1877.

Upon the foregoing petition, ORDERED, That said petitioner give public notice to all persons interested, by causing a copy of the petition and this order thereon to be published three weeks successively in the Bangor Weekly Courier, a newspaper published in Bangor, in said county, to be held at the Probate Office in said Bangor, on the last Tuesday in November next, at ten of the clock in the forenoon, and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot:

The undersigned, administrator of the estate of John P. Meserve, late of Bangor, in said county, deceased, respectfully represents that said goods and chattels, claims no credits of said estate not sufficient to pay his just debts and charges of administration, by the sum of one hundred dollars or more.

Wherefore your petitioner prays your Honors to grant him a license to sell, at public or private sale, such of said goods and chattels as may be of advantage to the estate of said deceased, situate on French Street in said Bangor, as the residue would be greatly injured if not sold at public or private sale, and pay the debts, expenses of sale, and the charges of administration.

Said real estate is the same described in a deed recorded in the Registry of Deeds, Hancock County, Maine, Book 150, page 150.

First Class Family Newspaper.

In politics the papers will continue to advocate and uphold the Principles of the Republican Party, while claiming to be independent, in the highest and best sense of the word. Fearless and outspoken in the treatment of all public questions and firmly maintaining what they believe to be right, they will avoid inflammatory and make their appeals to the understanding rather than to prejudice. The year about to open will be fraught with unusually important political events bearing upon the future of our country, and it will be our aim to afford our readers the earliest and most reliable information and to favor only such measures and policy as will best protect the rights and promote the welfare of all the people.

HOME INTERESTS,

as affected by the development of the resources of Maine, will receive special attention, and whatever is calculated to stimulate or benefit in the State will be heartily encouraged. We rigidly exclude from our columns everything of an immoral tendency, avoid sensational matter and seek to make a thoroughly reliable paper which will be sure of A Welcome in Every Family Circle.

To advertisers our columns open one of the best fields in New England, our circulation being the largest of any paper in this section, among the best classes of the people, and as our Daily issue affords the principal medium of communication with a large and constantly increasing number of readers throughout Central and Eastern Maine.

The Only Morning Daily East of the Kennebec,

OUR WEEKLY

is also the largest and best Weekly Newspaper in the State. Every number accompanied by a two-page Supplement, making a paper of FORTY EIGHT columns, or one-half larger than any other Weekly. It has a standard publication, with large and constantly increasing circulation among the most intelligent and thrifty of the population of Eastern Maine, and the small space devoted to advertising is eagerly sought by the best class of patrons.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE FOR 1878.

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and numbers. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their offices at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and, if so, they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers miss two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails—the down town boxes fifteen and the uptown boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

Holders of Post Office Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 7½ to 9½ A. M., and from 5 to 8½ P. M. Sundays from 9½ to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carriers' department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Carriers' window), when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and state, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

☞ The public are earnestly recommended to procure stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus addressed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $22.00 per thousand.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such Stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at this office.

DOMESTIC POSTAGE.

FIRST CLASS.

All letters must be Prepaid—Letters for the Mails in the United States, three cents the half ounce or single rate. City letters, two cents half ounce or single rate.

SECOND CLASS.

Newspapers.

All regular newspapers must be prepaid at the office of publication, at the rate of two cents per pound for each issue on weekly papers or three published oftener than once a week; this frequently than once a week, three cents. The same law applies to dealers.

County papers free, except to letter carrier offices, to papers coming to list of subscriber, if published in County, are subject to postage. Daily papers published in County, if delivered by carrier, one cent each, to be prepaid by stamps.

Pamphlets to Canada—Same as to the States on letters and papers, pre-payment compulsory, merchandise limited to 8 oz., postage 10 cents.

THIRD CLASS.

TRANSIENT PRINTED MATTER AND BOOKS AND MERCHANDISE.

One Cent for Two Ounces.

Almanacs, books (printed), calendars, catalogues, colored cards, hand bills, magazines, maps—lithographed or engraved—music, printed sheets, newspapers, occasional publications, pamphlets, posters, proof sheets, prospectuses.

One cent for each ounce.

Blank books, blank cards, book manuscripts, card boards and other flexible materials, circulars, circulars, engravings, envelopes, flexible patterns, letter envelopes, letter paper, photographs, merchandise, patterns, printed paper, postal cards when sent in bulk and not addressed, photographic views, photographic paper, printed matter, printed cards, sample cards, samples of ores, metals, minerals, seeds and medicinal herbs, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions, stereoscopic views.

Any packages of matter of third class must be so wrapped or enveloped, with open sides or ends, that the contents may be readily and thoroughly examined by postmasters without destroying the wrappers.

The sender of a package of third class matter may write his or her name on the wrapper with the word "from," but nothing more, without subjecting the whole to letter postage.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

All letters remaining in the office are advertised on Monday of each week. If not claimed in one month thereafter, they are then forwarded to the Dead Letter office.

MONEY ORDERS.

Especial attention is called to the Money Order system, as a safe and cheap method of transmitting small sums through the mails. Orders are issued in sums of not more than $30 dollars. Larger amounts can be transmitted to the same person, at the same time, by additional orders.

RATES.

On orders not exceeding $15,	10 cents
over $15 and not exceeding $30,	25 cents
over $30 and not exceeding $40,	35 cents.
over $40 and not exceeding $50,	35 cents.

Money Orders can also be obtained on England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Switzerland and German States.

Never put Money in a Letter—Always Procure a Money Order.

If money is to be remitted, a Postal Money Order should be obtained. If upon points where there is no Money Order Office, then the letter should be Registered. Money should never be enclosed in an ordinary letter.

Office Hours—From 8 A. M. to 6 P. M.

REGISTRY DEPARTMENT.

All valuable letters should be Registered, unless a Money Order is obtained. Under the present system of Registration, letters are transmitted with perfect safety.

Letters may be Registered by paying postage in full and a Registration fee in stamps, for—
